WELCOME MESSAGE

Dear Colleagues,

Welcome to AKO PARA SA BATA in Cebu! This is the first time that AKO PARA SA BATA is held outside Manila. It is not surprising that Cebu is the host. One can say that no one does it better than the Cebuanos! This is also the first time that the youth has come up with their own manifesto ahead of the adults! The youth conference on cyberbullying "Shift-CTRL-Del: Cyber Teens Responsible Leaders" was sensational! Under the leadership of Fr. Fidel Orendain of Don Bosco, we are witnessing the birth of a youth movement to stop cyberbullying not only in Cebu but nationwide.

When this year's conference theme was first chosen by the Cebu Organizing Committee we never imagined how timely it was going to be. We are at a time when everyone is realizing that protecting children knows no borders; that technology brings the world inside the living room even the bedroom. We need to learn new ways to fight an old enemy that has mutated. The children and youth have much to teach the adults this time. Naomi, Emma, Yvon, Fidel (FENY) you are all visionaries!

This year's Most Valuable Partner Awardee is the Committee for the Special Protection of Children, (CSPC) chaired by the Department of Justice and co-chaired by the Department of Social Welfare and Development. This interagency committee created by Executive Order No. 275 (s. 1995) and further strengthened by Executive Order No. 53 (s. 2011) was the first of the interagency committees. The members are: CHR, DFA, DOLE, DOT, DILG, DOH, DepEd, BI, NBI, PNP, Prosecution Service, ECPAT, CPN and Phil Inter-Faith Network for Children. As the coordinating body of R.A. 7610 which remains as the principal and comprehensive law for the protection of children against abuse and exploitation, CSPC has come up with the necessary policies, agency memos, and protocols to strengthen the child protection system in our country.

This conference would never be possible without our indefatigable organizing partners: UNICEF, TAO Corporation and the Department of Justice-Office of Cybercrime. It is in this Cebu conference that national researches on violence against children and the emerging global problem of online child sexual abuse will be presented for the first time. This is not just a conference but a platform that creates flows of knowledge, developing new insights leading to innovations that can change the core of how we do things. We are on the cusp of a new dawn in child protection in the Philippines and we are all part of it!

WELCOME MESSAGE

On behalf of the Child Protection Network, we extend our warmest welcome to the participants of the AKO PARA SA BATA Conference held this 2015 at Cebu City. As we learned from last year's conference, child protection knows no bounds. That is why it is important to bring our learnings to as many people as possible. We are grateful for the opportunity to stage this conference in Cebu. We hope that the lessons here can also be shared with other child protection advocacies in the country and in the ASEAN region.

Gone are the days when the only threats that we would like to protect our children from include physical, sexual, verbal and emotional abuses. Today, we are facing a threat that is far more complex and would therefore need tighter collaboration among us. An upsurge in the use of the internet and new forms of social media demands swifter, more responsible and strategic solutions to threats like child pornography, cyberbullying and other forms of child exploitation. These have a deep effect on the Filipino family, hence, the need to step up our efforts and to learn as much as we can to turn cyberculture into something positive. The issues we confront are not easy, but we hope that a spirit of collaboration across different sectors, disciplines and regions can empower us and make us more effective in fulfilling our purpose.

We hope to learn much from the delegates, special guests and speakers invited to the two-day event, as you all generously share your expertise on cyberprotection. This conference would not also be possible without the generosity and support of our organizers and sponsors. We thank you and pray that the Lord bless us as we continue to champion this cause.

Sincerely yours,

WELCOME MESSAGE

Why the focus on online child protection in the campaign against cybercrime?

Children are innocents and from this flows their vulnerability that requires society's special duty of care and response. We are for the children.

It is the overriding mission of the newly created Office of Cybercrime of the Department of Justice, an institution established in 1897, to prevent, interdict, investigate and prosecute child sex traffickers and offenders. It needs a multi-stakeholder approach and innovative ideas and approaches to get the work done.

Hence our support and commitment to the year-ending conference today and beyond.

Let us try to understand and reflect on this problem - that despite the value we place on families and our love for little ones, exploitation and abuse happen in our midst. Is it ignorance or greed? Is it sickness or depravity?

Let us pray for insights and guidance on how we can come together to a simpler time when red lines are not crossed, when crimes never pay.

May grace fill our hearts and minds.

WELCOME MESSAGE

Our children are now immersed in the cyber world where many of us adults are strangers to or are just an acquaintance of. When I was given the opportunity to hold the 2015 AKO PARA SA BATA Conference (APSB) here in Cebu this concern of children being exposed to cyber space came to mind.

To try to present and discuss the various topics applicable to the cyber world was a feat particularly for those of us who are mere acquaintances of this relatively new arena where danger and peril lurk for our unknowing children and which many adults use for their own benefit at the expense of our children. A big thank you to the members of the Scientific Committee members, seven plenary sessions and ten simultaneous sessions have been created in order to discuss the issue of online child abuse and exploitation and how to keep our children safe and protected.

The Cebu conference is unique from the other AKO PARA SA BATA conferences in two ways. First, we wanted to hear what the youth had to say about cyber issues affecting them. Cyber bullying was a main concern. Hence, a pre-APSB youth conference on cyber bullying was held on October 17 & 18, 2015 at the Bayfront Hotel, Cebu City. Attended by a little over two-hundred students and one-hundred teachers from pre-selected public and private schools mainly from the cities of Cebu, Talisay, Mandaue and Lapu-lapu, the youth formulated their own commitment to address cyber bullying. You shall hear from them on December 2, 2015. But even before then, they already have been actively saying SHIFT+CTRL+DEL, NO TO CYBERBULLYING in FaceBook, Twitter, Instagram and other social media available to them as well as in their own schools.

Second, we wanted this conference to have a life of its own even after it ends. Riding on the commitment of the Child Protection Network Foundation, Inc. to protect children from online child abuse and exploitation in its partnership with the Convergence of Councils and Committees for Child Protection spearheaded by the Department of Justice, we have asked other agencies and organizations to commit to this same task by creating specific, doable, and time-bound activity/activities. You will also hear from them on December 2, 2015 and, hopefully, in the 2016 APSB conference in Manila as they have been asked to give us a year-end report of what they have achieved.

This conference, as well as the youth conference, would not have been possible if not for the members of the Organizing Committee, majority of who have very kindly accepted my request for them to be on board despite their heavy work schedules. I am humbled. I shall be forever grateful to them.

Thank you, too, to all of you for coming over to Cebu. May we continue to work together and to learn together all for the best interests of our children.

WELCOME MESSAGE

The AKO PARA SA BATA (I am for the Child) Summit could not have been held at a better time. Exploitation of children online is a growing concern globally. Recent reports in the Philippines raise alarms to the protection threats confronting children in our communities, through live streaming and online commercial sexual exploitation, as well as cyber bullying. The situation calls for urgent, unabated response. UNICEF extends full support to the Summit and deems online protection of children as an issue of utmost importance.

Children make up one-third of all internet users globally; rapidly expanding internet, which has significantly increased access to information, unfortunately has also heightened the risk of abuse. Protecting children online has thus become an urgent global agenda. More importantly, it has become part of a larger global movement to end violence, abuse and exploitation of children in all life-settings, including in the virtual world.

UNICEF recognizes the commitment and consistent, hard work of the Government of the Philippines in raising awareness on issues related to child online exploitation. This commitment is evident through the useful legislation put in place to support and protect children from the threat of cybercrimes, including child pornography.

However, the laws and policies can only be effective when adequately implemented. We need to advocate for implementation of the laws to ensure that perpetrators are brought to justice, that every young victim is appropriately supported, and that communities are assisted to better protect their children.

We know that online abuse of children takes place in communities and homes in the Philippines. It is only through intensified efforts from all partners that we can stop online exploitation of children, as part of a broader and more comprehensive campaign to end all forms of violence against children.

We know that strengthening online protection of children demands a strong multi sectoral partnership, including with law enforcement and private sector (ISPs) alongside traditional child protection partners. And that further work is needed to build specialised technical capacity to deal with this unique challenge.

We also know there is a serious dearth of good data and evidence on the nature and extent of online abuse. Our ability to tackle this problem is impeded by inadequate information. It is our challenge, and our obligation, to urgently gather accurate evidence to crack down against online abuse of children.

Finally, communities and families need to be more aware of and involved in addressing this problem, in understanding the risks that their children face and what they can do to help end exploitation and violence against children.

This conference provides an important opportunity to bring concerned partners together, not only to tighten our grasp of online exploitation, but also to forge ahead with an unyielding, strategic partnership. Together we can tackle the range of challenges we face in this battle until we protect all children against exploitation and violence.

KEY POINTS AND ABSTRACTS

Social Cyberspace: A revolutionary, perplexing, dangerous new world

Horacio Severino

- Social media in a democratic system, this generation is the most enabled and interconnected in history.
- Teens today still lack a label -- how about the optimistic (or wishful) We Generation?
- But the enabling technology also has many dangers and pitfalls. Their elders have a role in establishing rules and boundaries to make this a helpful new world. But first they have to understand it.

Online Child Abuse and Exploitation: Global Threats, Challenges, Data and Initiatives

Dorothy Rozga

- To understand the major threats related to the sexual exploitation of children through the misuse of technologies and the internet, which are presented as the following:
 - Greater circulation of child pornography, increasingly through peer-to-peer (P2P) file sharing;
 - An important share of CSAM traffic on TOR/hidden net;
 - Use of mobile devices by child predators;
 - Use of cloud-based services;
 - Increase in live streaming of child sexual abuse shows;
 - Growth in the production of self-generated sexual materials by adolescents;
 - Majority of young and prepubescent children portrayed on the child abuse images (child pornography); and
 - Use of virtual currency such as Bitcoins to purchase CSAM.
- To give an overview of international laws and policies such as the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography (OPSC), Council of Europe Convention on Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse (also known as the Lanzarote Convention) and Convention on Cybercrime (also known as the Budapest Convention).
- To cite and explain the roles of agencies involved in the efforts against online child abuse, including INTERPOL, Europol, INHOPE, Child Helpline International (CHI), and Internet Watch Foundation among many others.

The Developing Adolescent in the Digital Generation

Dr. Bernadette Madrid

A media company survey in 2013 showed that Pinoys lead the world in the amount of time spent socializing online. It said Filipinos spend 53 hours socializing in a week, 11 hours more than the global average of 42 hours. Filipinos aged 15 to 24 years old represent the biggest consumers of information technology in the past few years according to a Philippine media and lifestyle survey. The author, Grace Cruz, said that "One in three young people said they have friends whom they only met online while 25 percent have friends whom they met through text and have not seen personally." This same behavior was exhibited by victims of Child Sexual Abuse (CSA) seen at the Child Protection Unit where a retrospective study on CSA cases involving social media found that 41% of the victims claimed that the perpetrator was their "boyfriend", and more than half of these victims admitted to meeting their "boyfriend" for the first time through social media, and engaging in a relationship even prior to actually meeting their "boyfriend" in person. The plenary lecture will discuss how the adolescent's developing identity and emerging sexuality is affected by the use of social media and vice versa. The lecture will also show how sources of sexual information shape norms, behavior and beliefs of adolescents. It will conclude on how these will impact on the health and development of adolescents.

Challenges of Cyberculture on Education and On the Filipino Family

Fr. Fidel Orendain, SDB

The speaker takes "cyberculture" as a cultural product of Information Communication Technologies (ICT), particularly the computer and mobile devices that have generated a way of life that takes place entirely online. The increasing usage of ICTs contributes to the buildup of a cyberculture that is altering how family members relate and how the young are educated.

KEY POINTS AND ABSTRACT

On the Family aspect the speaker plans to explore:

The dramatic shifts brought about by cyberculture in the areas of family interpersonal interaction

On the educational aspect:

How are ICTs actually being used in education?

What principles can be followed in exploring new directions?

What do we know about the impact of ICTs on student learning or on student motivation and engagement for learning?

Violence against Children in the Philippines: The Facts

Lota Sylwander

Violence against children: A global issue

Violence against children is a universal problem affecting millions of children worldwide. It occurs in homes, schools and communities and affects children of all ethnic, social and economic backgrounds. Research shows that the effects of such violence can have devastating and long-term impacts, including life-long physical and mental health problems.

UNICEF recognises that child online exploitation is an especially pernicious form of violence and represents an increasingly worrisome global issue. Children make up one-third of all internet users around the world, and rapidly expanding internet access has heightened the risk for abuse. Protecting children online is now an urgent issue on the global agenda and forms part of a larger movement to end violence, abuse and exploitation of children in all life-settings, including the virtual world.

The Asia-Pacific Region

Childhood violence is estimated to cost countries in the Asia-Pacific region a staggering US$ 209 billion a year. This figure comes from research findings published just this year and follows on recent regional commitments to gather more detailed, national evidence on violence against children – including crimes of online exploitation.

As an active part of this movement, the Philippines is among four countries to have already completed comprehensive national surveys (together with Cambodia, Lao PDR, and Indonesia) and is among the first countries in the region to have committed to a robust response plan once the findings of the study are released.

The Philippines

The Philippines is clearly no exception to the ills of violence against children, including those on the Internet. From harassment and cyber-bullying to online sexual abuse, solicitation and exposure, recent and forthcoming research is revealing the many online threats posed to our communities.

UNICEF recognizes the commitments already made by the Government of the Philippines to gather evidence and begin raising awareness on these issues as well as its work to adopt strong legislation to support and protect children from cybercrimes.

UNICEF's commitment

UNICEF is acutely aware that research and legislation will only be as effective as the responses that are launched. Such responses will require highly coordinated action by all government working on policy, law enforcement, prosecution, the judiciary, social welfare, and inter-agency mechanisms, ICT/ISP industry, civil society and development actors and organizations. It is now our challenge and obligation to urgently gather even greater evidence and to build equally robust, multi-sectoral prevention and response plans.

UNICEF remains dedicated to these efforts. As an organization that puts children at the heart of all its work, our agency will continue building and supporting global and local strategies that aim to put an end to child online exploitation as part of a wider movement to stop violence against children in all its forms.

KEY POINTS AND ABSTRACT

Case X – Lessons from a Collaborative Rescue (SS 1)

Atty. Lawrence Aritao

Collaborative rescues and effective prosecutions can form part of an effective response--and deterrent-- to online child sexual exploitation. All strategies to improve such rescues and prosecutions must remain faithful to the best interests of the child.

Agencies that should be involved and the need for strong collaboration among agencies (SS 1)

Dir. Monica Pagunsan

Online Child Abuse has been a great concern for Philippine authorities. Law enforcement agencies report of voluminous child pornography materials uploaded in the internet, everyday. The Philippines has also been identified as a top source of these materials which has been circulated globally and the source of income for enterprising criminal elements. Due to the prevalence of this problem, this is a phenomenon that one agency nor the government can undertake alone. It needs an integrated approach involving related agencies and the private sector to tackle this societal scourge in terms of prevention, advocacy, protection and response.

The DOJ facilitated the national convergence of councils and committees on various child protection issues to trigger collective actions from various stakeholders at different levels on how to strengthen Government response in affording protection for children in the Cyberage. These inter-agency bodies include the Committee for the Special Protection for Children (CSPC), Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking (IACAT), Juvenile Justice and Welfare Council (JJWC), Inter-Agency Coalition Against Child Pornography (IACACP), and the CWC.

Definition, Incidence, People-at-risk (SS 2)

Dr. Emmanuel Hernani

My presentation will highlight the different types of bullying and its variant, cyberbullying, which is the main topic of my presentation. I will present the different types of cyberbullying and its definition and description. There will be some data presentation and I would focus my discussion of this section on case studies that are of interest to the Philippine setting. I will identify sectors that are vulnerable and those who are at risk of becoming victims to cyberbullying.

Responding to and Reporting Cases of Cyberbullying (SS 2)

Ysrael Diloy

Cyberbullying is a multi-faceted problem and needs to be addressed in a multi-faceted way accordingly. We have to recognize that at its core, it is not only a “technology” based problem, but is also something that has to be addressed in terms of behavioral change and institutional policies. The topic will center on different modes of responding to cases of cyberbullying, not only for children themselves, but also for families and institutions.

KEY POINTS AND ABSTRACT

The Cebu Experience in Providing Aftercare to OSEC Victims (SS 7)

Dr. Clara Nemia Antipala

Major Impact of Online Sexual Exploitation on Children and Adolescents:

- Confusion about what is right and what is wrong
- Attachment issues

Challenges met by aftercare staff:

- Separating the children from their parents in a less painful or traumatic way
- Providing developmentally appropriate information
- Protecting the privacy of the children from curious neighbors and media during the rescue operations

Gaps in available care

- Lack of safe shelters equipped to accept sibling groups with possible complex trauma.
- Lack of foster parents adequately trained in trauma informed care to provide substitute home care for rescued children or siblings.
- Lack of expert care to prevent the development of trauma symptoms arising from the separation from parents (depression, withdrawal, etc.)

Needs of these children:

- Safe shelters with staff trained on trauma informed care
- Safe shelters accepting sibling groups that can provide substitute parenting
- Continuation of schooling
- Expert care in dealing with emerging trauma symptoms

Unique issues in walking with these kids towards restoration:

- How to make rescues less painful and traumatic
- How to help the children deal with the pain and confusion of their abrupt separation from their parents, their loneliness and confusion about why they can't see their parents, coping/living with the shame, and maintaining relationship with their parents who are in jail
- How to prepare the children for a future without parents in the next 20 or more years especially the 2-year old kid
- How to help the eldest child cope with the responsibility of being a parent to her younger sisters while having to cope with the challenges of growing up herself
- How to help the children understand what testifying is (telling the truth about what you know), why it's important, and helping them work through emotions and develop coping skills to manage the feelings that come with being asked to testify, actually testifying, or simply even knowing there is a case against one of their loved ones

Applying lessons learned from combating traditional trafficking and abuse (SS 7)

Ann Steffen-Knapp

Lessons learned from working with survivors of human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation, including some considerations that are unique to the OSEC population.

Emotional and psychosocial impact of online child abuse (SS 7)

Anamabel Garcia

Nature and Dynamics of Online Sexual Abuse

- Prevalence of the issue not just globally but locally. Showing how social media impacted the lives of children pervasively in a negative way. Though social media/ internet has been of good tool towards progress and development, the downside of such and how much influence does it spread to the community of vulnerable sectors must also be divulged and talked about publicly.
- Push Factors that led children to Online Sexual Abuse
- Reasons that victims find themselves uncooperative to rescuers
- Entrapment Process

KEY POINTS AND ABSTRACT

Common Notions on the Issue of Online Sexual Exploitation of Children

- Myths and beliefs add to the complexities in understanding the dynamics of Online Sexual Exploitation of Children (OSEC). These complexities hinder people to soar deeply what the real victimization that the victims are into, thus failing to understand what these victims are undergoing through and how they are hooked into it.
- Dispelling myths can help us understand the true nature and dynamics of OSEC and make us find effective approaches to respond to their needs and makes us become efficient aftercare service providers.
- Strongly held myths and beliefs that usually stem from unexamined cultural notions of the issue of OSEC leads to judgmental attitudes of people surrounding the victims/survivors. Such lived beliefs could result to inappropriate intervention which could also make service providers helpless and frustrated. All these could boil down to the attitude of blaming the victims.

Consequences/ Impact on: Family, Emotional, Psychological, Physical

Importance of trauma-informed strategies, trauma-informed care in all stages, trauma-informed psychotherapy (SS 7)

Dr. José Andrés Sotto

This presentation addresses the challenges faced by service organizations when treating OSEC victims. The author argues that, given the severe loss of a victim's sense of safety, power, voice and significance, service organizations have to work at rebuilding the victim's sense of connectedness, restoring her trust in people and her environment, and strengthening her resiliencies. Trauma-informed approaches enhance a survivor's rehabilitation through a system of model coherency, framed by six inter-locking principles—safety, trustworthiness, peer specialists, empowerment, collaboration and mutuality, and diversity. Issues concerning case management and intervention are laid out.

Child Sensitive Interview: An Overview (SS 8)

Dr. Naomi Navarro-Poca

- Effective investigation of online child abuse includes learning from the child what was done to her or him, what he or she had seen, heard, felt and even tasted or smelled. From her or his own mouth. Using his or her own words.
- For effective interviewing one must always keep in mind the children's best interests. This means taking into consideration their varying needs, capabilities, values, interests, and cultural differences. Interviewing children in a sensitive manner is not only meant for law enforcers investigating cases involving children but also for lawyers, social workers, judges and mental health professionals who, for particular purposes, will need to know what the child can narrate to him or her.
- In conducting a child sensitive forensic interview, the interviewer is an objective fact-finder, a neutral truth-seeker who first establishes and maintains rapport with the child, uses language that is developmentally appropriate to the child and conducts the interview in a flexible manner following the child's lead and adapting to the his or her needs and circumstances while manifesting a demeanor aimed at eliciting accurate and reliable information from the child. As such, ongoing training and peer review is necessary.
- Interviewers have to keep in mind that an effective interview is not dependent on the child but on the skill of the interviewer.

Internet Gaming Disorder (IGD): Signs and Symptoms (SS 9)

Dr. Narcisa Cristina Cinco

- IGD is not yet a formal diagnosis on DSM-5
- IGD, like Gambling Disorder, is a behavioral addiction
- The neurotransmitter, Dopamine, and the same areas of the brain are affected in IGD, gambling, and the brains of drug addicts
- Behavioral addicts as well as drug addicts manifest similar impairments, tolerance, and withdrawal symptoms
- There is evidence from China that IGD is associated with a reduction of both grey and white matter in the brain areas involved with higher functions

Treatment of Internet Gaming Disorder (SS 9)

Norieta Calma-Balderrama

Internet gaming Disorder (IGD) also known as video game addiction or pathological video gaming as seen in the DSM 5 edition has been classified under the conditions for further study. Proposed criteria was discussed including persistent and recurrent use of the internet to engage in games leading to clinically significant functional impairment in one year. DSM 5 shows nine criteria a) preoccupation with internet games b) withdrawal symptoms when internet gaming c) tolerance d) unsuccessful attempts to control e) loss of interest in hobbies and entertainment f) excessive use of internet games despite knowledge of psychosocial problems g) deception h) use of internet gaming to escape or relieve a negative mood i) loss of significant relationship, job or educational or career opportunity.

Studies show CBT is considered as an effective treatment and four major cognitive factors affecting children with IGD were identified. Notable factors to be discussed when treating children with IGD includes; gaming as a means of social acceptance, gaming to boost self esteem, importance of game reward value, maladaptive and inflexible rules about gaming behaviour. The cognitive behavioural models can be categorized under problematic cognitions and behaviours that maintain the maladaptive response. Maladaptive cognitions can be about the self or the world. The other explanation is related to preference for online social interactions and preoccupations. In general gaming satisfies the psychological need for competence, autonomy and relatedness.

Successful treatment of cases handled included both somatic and psychosocial modes of treatment. Most of the cases had either personal issues or those related to family or peer groups. Most vulnerable are senior high school students and first year college students. Most of the cases handled were given antidepressants. Other modes of treatment included psychoeducation, family therapy, behaviour parent training in collaboration with school authorities.

CBT strategy for internet gaming disorder includes a development of a controlled behavior plan which includes antecedents and triggers and monitoring. The aim was to help the child to control the use of internet.

It is hoped that further studies on internet gaming will be conducted in the Philippines so that we will also have our own data and consider cultural differences inherent among children that we serve.

KEY POINTS AND ABSTRACT

Selfies, Sexting and Sex Videos (SS 9)

Ysrael Diloy

The internet and social media in particular, has been said to have contributed significantly to the “narcissist” tendencies of young people today. With the invisible security and privacy bought about by the digital age, there are increasing reports of teenagers engaging in the production of self-generated sexualized materials. This talk will explore the concept of this practice, how it progresses, and the possible consequences to such behavior.

Intervention/ Prevention for Internet Gaming and Self-Generated CSA materials (SS9)

Ysrael Diloy

It is not enough to recognize risky behaviors of children. As child protection advocates, we also have to equip ourselves on what interventions we can take in order to build up the protective behavior of children so that will not be further exposed to such risks/dangers. This talk will discuss different intervention/prevention modalities, from primary and tertiary intervention, to more institutionalized prevention efforts/ideas

Impact of Cyberage on Child Development / Implication on Parenting Children and Adolescents (SS 10)

Dr. Stella Manalo

The two combined talks will explore the impact of the pervasive influence of electronic media represented by television, internet, computer, tablets and mobile technology on children’s brain development, behavior and learning.

The first part of the talk will tackle the essential needs of young children during each critical stage of development and how exposure to electronic gadgets disrupts this normal process. The continuing risks to physical, socio-emotional and mental health associated with excessive use of digital devices will also be highlighted. Special emphasis will be placed on the effect on children of violent images on television, the inter-net and gaming (computer, on-line and video-gaming).

The second part of the lecture will address the vital role of parents in regulating their children’s exposure to electronic and digital media and how they must implement discipline and self-control in the use of these extremely attractive and addictive gadgets or devices.

PROFILE OF PARTNER ORGANIZATIONS

Consuelo Foundation is an operating foundation registered under the laws of the United States of America. It was founded by Consuelo Zobel Alger whose family has, over the years, greatly influenced the economic and business landscapes all throughout the Philippines. Her generosity enabled the Foundation to “renew hope to those who have lost it and give hope to those who never had it.” This vision is realized through the prevention and treatment of abuse, neglect and exploitation among children, women and families. Since its inception in 1988, Consuelo Foundation has helped more than 400,000 children and women in the Philippines and 5,000 in Hawaii in partnership with more than 100 non-government organizations.

Consuelo’s mission “to spend heaven doing good on earth” began shortly after her death but her legacy in caring for the poor children and women still lives to this day.

The Department of Health (DOH) holds the over-all technical authority on health as it is a national health policy-maker and regulatory institution.

The DOH has three major roles in the health sector: (1) leadership in health; (2) enabler and capacity builder; and (3) administrator of specific services. Its mandate is to develop national plans, technical standards, and guidelines on health. Aside from being the regulator of all health services and products, the DOH is the provider of special tertiary health care services and technical assistance to health providers and stakeholders.

Together with its attached agencies, the DOH – constituted of various central bureaus and services in the Central Office, Centers for Health Development (CHD) in every region, and DOH-retained hospitals – performs its roles to continuously improve the country’s health care system.
