SIMULTANEOUS SESSIONS

A1 INSPIRED BARMM

Title: BARMM Youth: Empowered, Engaged & Ready for Nation-building

Main Objective: To showcase stories of young people from BARMM that highlight the challenges and adversities they encounter as well as their triumphs as they shape the future of the region

Specific Objectives:

1. Describe the various issues, including health, from the perspective of youth from cultural minorities
2. Discuss the need to engage young people and their critical role in peace building in the region

Abstract: Comprehensive Agreement on the Bangsamoro (CAB) is the peace agreement between the national government and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) signed on March 27, 2014. The passage and ratification of the Bangsamoro Organic Law (BOL) and the subsequent establishment of the BARMM is part of the political track of the CAB. The rights of the youth are also enshrined in Article IX: Basic Rights of the BOL, which specifically recognizes the vital role of the youth in nation-building. Another component of the CAB is the normalization track. This involves the decommissioning of MILF fighters and their weapons, the dismantling of Private Armed Groups, as well as the transformation of several camps into progressive and resilient communities. The symposium highlights the youth sector's participation in efforts related to the ongoing transition of the Bangsamoro interim government and the implementation of the BOL.

B1 Implementation and enforcement of laws

Title: Juvenile Justice: Forging Ahead for Children in Conflict with the Law

Objectives:

1. Discuss the evidence-based mental health interventions that work for children in conflict with the law
2. Explain the legal interventions that have been effective in rehabilitating juvenile offenders
3. Inspire hope through the stories of youth offenders who were able to change towards a better life

Abstract: Hope is the great mover of change.

Juvenile offenders may have committed crimes but there is still hope for change and for a better life.

With evidence-based interventions that have been proven to work effectively, there are children in conflict with the law who have been rehabilitated and returned to a productive and upstanding life outside of institutions and away from a life of crime. This shows that shifting one's perspective from viewing these juvenile offenders as criminals to youth that needs support and assistance creates room for hope and new beginnings instead of persecution and marginalization. With hope, there is change; and change leads to true justice.

C1 Norms and values

Title: The Rainbow Connection: Examining Norms and Attitudes towards Gender Roles and Gender Diversity

Main Objective: To summarize the changing norms related to gender and gender non-conformity in terms of concepts regarding sexual orientation and gender identity as well as to address discrimination, violence, and common health concerns of gender non-conforming individuals

Specific Objectives:

1. Differentiate various concepts pertaining to sexual orientation and gender identity (SOGIE)
2. Prioritize concerns on health disparities and violence among the gender non-conforming
3. Explain intimate partner violence and its forms
4. Recommend initiatives to combat discrimination and violence directed towards gender non-conforming individuals

Abstract: Adolescence is the time of life wherein rapid physical, psychosocial, and cognitive changes are taking place simultaneously. Hence, it is a rocky phase of life as they have to go through many adjustments. Some of the developmental tasks of adolescents include discovering their identity as well as establishing peer relations and their sexuality. Currently, there have been changing norms related to gender and gender non-conformity. According to the article in Time magazine dated March 2017, "young people are questioning the conventions that when it comes to gender and sexuality, there are only two options for each: male or female, gay or straight". Some adolescents and emerging adults are refusing to just accept the notions of what society has imposed. Along with these concerns come certain issues like discrimination, violence, and their health in general.

D1 Safe environments

Title: Shining Light on the Dark Web

Main Objective: To formulate applicable strategies against Online Sexual Exploitation of Children (OSEC)

Specific Objectives:

1. Present a situational analysis based on the latest nationwide and international research on OSEC
2. Demonstrate different interventions, both locally and internationally, which are being employed to reduce violence against children through online means
3. Recommend programs or strategies to reduce OSEC which can be applied in different areas

Abstract: Teenagers nowadays belong to the generation of 'digital natives'. Undoubtedly, the online environment plays a big role in their social, mental and emotional development. While the internet made tremendous innovations with its accessibility and convenience, it has also paved way for the escalation of online sexual abuse and exploitation. Creating and sustaining safe community environments for children and teens involves ensuring online safety as well.

A2 Parent and caregiver support

Title: Masayang Pamilya Para sa Pilipinong Teenager: Positive Parenting for Teens

Main Objective: To present the Parenting for Lifelong Health (PLH)-Philippines program for families with adolescents, the Masayang Pamilya Para sa Batang Pilipino (MaPa Teens), and discuss the preliminary evidence for its effectiveness in preventing violence in families with adolescents

Specific Objectives:

1. Present an overview of the role and evidence for Parent and Caregiver Support interventions in preventing maltreatment of adolescents, including characteristics of effective programs and considerations in delivering them at scale
2. Describe the PLH Masayang Pamilya program as a specific example of a local program and present evidence of its effectiveness in preventing maltreatment in families with adolescents
3. Demonstrate the delivery of the MaPa Teens program via a simulation of a small group session led by trained MaPa Teens facilitators
4. Discuss the issues, challenges, opportunities, and recommendations for delivering and scaling evidence-based parenting programs in local communities, based on the MaPa Teens experience

Abstract: The session presents a theoretical overview and local evidence of how parenting and caregiver support interventions can support adolescent development and prevent violence in families with teens. In particular, the specific example of the PLH-Philippines program, the MaPa Teens, is demonstrated. Results from a recent pilot implementation and feasibility study will be presented as well as lessons and opportunities for scaling community-based programs. A MaPa Teens session will be demonstrated by trained MaPa teens facilitators.

B2 Income and economic strengthening

Title: Influencers, Entrepreneurs, and Dreamers: Young People at the Helm

Main Objective: To support youth-empowered interventions designed to improve income and/or reduce economic vulnerability

Specific Objectives:

1. Contextualize the role of young people towards income and economic strengthening: as recipients (e.g. conditional cash transfers) and as entrepreneurs
2. Feature endeavors among young people as entrepreneurs and social influencers with businesses aligned with social development
3. Synthesize input as material for policy formation

Abstract: Money does talk and in this simultaneous symposium, young people have the potential of resounding it well. Discussions focusing on youth-empowered interventions designed to improve income, and/or reduce economic vulnerability will be tackled by some of the Philippines' young entrepreneurs who are frontliners in social development. Income and economic strengthening has been identified as one of the factors that contribute to ending violence in women and children. If there is economic stability and empowerment, we reduce risk factors for violence and increase protective ones.

C2 Response and support services

Title: Mental Health Screening and Interventions: A Primer for Frontliners

Main Objective: To provide an overview of the current state of psychosocial response and other social support services beginning with available tools and measures as well as effective coping skills for individuals who are victims of violence and maltreatment

Specific Objectives:

1. Discuss the basic principles of screening tools for depression and resiliency and to present how it is used by service providers for abused and maltreated adolescents
2. Know how to utilize and conduct the screening tools in their setting
3. Know how to utilize mindfulness and simple relaxation as a form of response and support mechanisms in handling victims of child and adolescent abuse and maltreatment
4. Learn simple and basic mindfulness and relaxation techniques that they can utilize as service providers

Abstract: Where basic health services are in place, provision of therapeutic interventions, social welfare support services, and criminal justice support services to child victims can help them better cope with and recover from the consequences of traumatic experiences, thereby subsequently help break the cycle of violence. The symposium centers on the identified approaches of World Health Organization (WHO, 2016) that are effective or promising in reducing health and social impacts of violence.

D2 Education and life skills

Title: Comprehensive Sexuality Education: Beyond the Birds & the Bees

Specific Objectives:

1. Expound the importance of a comprehensive sexuality education (CSE) in school systems
2. Describe the implementation of the CSE program through school-based initiatives
3. Identify community-based programs which promote safety and reproductive rights of teenagers
4. Describe the challenges and identify strategies on educating youth with developmental disabilities regarding sexuality

Abstract: One of the most common health concerns faced by adolescents is related to their sexual behavior. The Philippines' adolescent birth rate is high and is one of the highest teenage pregnancy rates in the world. One in 10 adolescents aged 15-19 years old have begun childbearing, either having a live birth or is pregnant with the first child. This means that 24 babies born to teenage mothers every hour, equivalent to 576 babies per day. Most of these are unplanned pregnancies and may end up as abortion, fetal mortality and/or maternal mortality. The impact of early pregnancy is great that it affects not just the teen mother or the baby, but the society in general.

Another concern for the youth is the rise in sexually transmitted infection, including HIV. Most other countries have decreasing rate of HIV. Philippines on the other hand, have an increasing prevalence, and (not something that we should be proud of) even has the highest increase rate of HIV in the Asia Pacific region. Almost a third of the HIV positive population is from the young adults group 15-24 years old.

There are effective ways to prevent teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted infection. But it needs a collaborative effort with the teens, parents, school, community, and the government. Education is one important means to resolve these concerns and their consequences. Comprehensive Sexuality Education (CSE) provides a holistic, developmentally-appropriate and scientifically accurate information about the human development and reproductive health, including the physical, cognitive, emotional and social aspects of sexuality. CSE will provide not just information but the skills, attitudes and values that will help the youth have better health and well-being.

E2 Safe environments Part 2

Title: Shining Light on the Dark Web Part 2: Issues, Investigations, and Interventions

Specific Objectives:

1. Present a situational analysis based on latest research on Online Sexual Exploitation of Children (OSEC), particularly among male children and adolescents
2. Describe different interventions utilized here and abroad to address the impact of OSEC
3. Identify programs or strategies to reduce OSEC that may be applicable in the local setting

Abstract: Today's generation of adolescents are called Generation Z, iGen or Screenagers since they have had gadgets and the internet since their infancy. Their lives and relationships online are just as vital and important as their lives offline. While the internet opens up horizons and is an inexhaustible source of information and entertainment, the web has also its (very) dark side. The convenience and anonymity that the web affords has expanded the breadth and types of OSEC. We take pains in insuring safe spaces in our homes and we should exert as much (if not more focused) efforts to make the web safer for our children and adolescents. We should be ready to identify the signs of OSEC, investigate and provide evidence-based interventions.
